<sup>1</sup> Mr. Howard served as Fannie Mae's chief financial officer between 1982 and 2004, and authored The Mortgage Wars (McGraw-Hill: 2013). See Declaration of J. Timothy Howard, Doc., 96-1. The Government objected to Mr. Howard gaining access to protected information. See Doc. 95. Judge Sweeney denied Fairholme's request to permit him access in an Opinion and Order dated Oct. 15, 2014. See Doc. 101. Mr. Howard filed an amicus brief in Perry v. Lew, No. 14-5243 (D.C. Cir.), in July 2015, providing the appellate tribunal with his insights into GSE accounting, his conclusion that the GSEs didn't need cash from Treasury to solve a liquidity problem, and how the one-sided nature of the deal makes it grossly unfair

<sup>9</sup> The government objected to Gibson Dunn's request, see Doc. 227, asserting that the firm's access to confidential discovery materials is premature at this juncture. Perry Capital, see Doc. 231, argued that its lawyers can't meaningfully respond to Fairholme's motion (Doc. 1565601) to supplement the record without access to the documents Fairholme filed under seal in Perry v. Lew, No. 14-5243 (D.C. Cir.). Gibson Dunn renewed its request, see Doc. 248, and Judge Sweeny promptly denied, see Doc. 249, the firm's request for access to confidential discovery materials as premature because the D.C. Circuit has not ruled on Fairholme's motion to supplement the record. Following the D.C. Circuit's ruling (Doc. 1581672) that parties in Perry v. Lew may "refer to the lodged supplement to the appellate record in their remaining briefs," Perry again renewed its request (Doc. 254). Overruling the government's proposed objection, Judge Sweeney granted (Doc. 255) that renewed request and entered a Second Amended Protective Order (Doc. 256) adding "any person permitted to have access by order of the court" to the list of individuals permitted access to protected information in the fourth numbered paragraph of that order.

<sup>13</sup> Mr. Schneebeck filed a Motion for Leave to Withdraw Appearance (Doc. 298) on Feb. 12, 2016.

<sup>14</sup> The government opposed the Saxton Plaintiffs' request for access to confidential discovery materials, see Doc. 263, because the Iowa Court has indicated that it wants to answer the legal question of whether a GSE shareholder lawsuit is barred by HERA before examining any further facts. Judge Sweeney declined to side with the government, see Doc. 265, and gave the Saxton Plaintiffs' lawyers access to protected information Fairholme lodged with the Court in Saxton v. FHFA, Case No. 15-47 (N.D. Iowa).

<sup>16</sup> The government urged Judge Sweeney to delay and contract Ms. Robinson's lawyers' access to Fairholme's discovery, and adopt a rule that the mere filing of a complaint by a shareholder doesn't give that shareholder's lawyers automatic access to confidential discovery materials produced to Fairholme. See Doc. 277. In response, Ms. Robinson's lawyers argued that the government hasn't -- and can't -- distinguish Ms. Robinson from the Saxton Plaintiffs, so they should be granted equal access to Fairholme's confidential discovery materials. See Doc. 278. Judge Sweeney found the government's arguments unpersuasive and granted Ms. Robinson's lawyers' access request. See Doc. 279.
